TIPPING POINT

Fly-tipper who dumped truckload of junk got off lightly, says council leader

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A FLY-TIPPER who was fined £320 after being filmed dumping a truckload of rubbish on a Tottenham street got off lightly in the opinion of the leader of Haringey Council.

The punishment handed out to Gabriel Prempeh at Tottenham Magistrates' Court last Wednesday was branded "not much more than a slap on the wrist" by Claire Kober.

And she firmly believes it is time the courts got tough with offenders who brazenly flout the law to fly-tip by dishing out stiffer sentences as a deterrent.

"The £320 fine isn't much more than a slap on the wrist, it's time the courts gave higher fines and tougher sentences" she said and tougher sentences," she said.

"Fly-tipping is a blight on our communities and a health hazard and costs councils £50million a year to clean up. Every penny councils spend on clearing up fly-tipping could be better spent on help for older people, our libraries or parks."

Prempeh, 35, of Ranelagh Road, Wood Green, was captured on CCTV in December last year dumping rubbish from a flatback tipper truck in Kessock Close on Tottenham Hale's Ferry Lane Estate.

The truck's licence plate was traced, but he was not the registered keeper of the vehicle. But two months later CCTV operators spotted the truck illegally parked on a pavement and he was recognised as the fly-tipper. He was spoken to by officers at the scene and his vehicle seized as he had 27 outstanding unpaid parking fines.

Wood Green 'not the right choice'

THE Labour-controlled council's "bias" in favour of a single rather than a two-station option for the proposed Crossrail 2 high-speed link to Haringey has been criticised by the Liberal Democrat opposition criticised by the Liberal Democrat opposition.

It follows a plea to new Mayor of London Sadiq Khan by haringey Council leader Claire Kober not to delay the ambitious £32billion scheme, which would see trains running on an extended section between Seven Sisters and New Southgate stations, via either Turnpike Lane and Alexandra Palace stations, or an alternative route via Wood Green station.

The Lib Dems say the Wood Green option preferred by the council is not the one most residents, Transport for London or they themselves prefer.

"The council looks at the routes from the viewpoint of bolstering property development around Wood Green station," said Highgate ward Lib Dem councillor Clive Carter.

"TfL have broader considerations that have to do with managing public transport in greater London."

Garage fire fatality

FIREFIGHTERS called to a private garage in Tottenham in the early hours of Saturday morning found the body of a man inside.

morning found the body of a man inside.

The victim was found in the garage in St
Paul's Road just after 2.30am.

It is not known whether he was sleeping rough or how the blaze started, but his death is not being treated as suspicious.

Half of the garage was damaged by the blaze, which was brought under control by crews from Tottenham fire station shortly after 3.30am.

An investigation is being carried out into the cause of the fire.

Demolition work gets under way as facelift begins

DEMOLITION began last week at the site of a popular Tottenham street market which is being given a long-awaited facelift.

Stallholders at Holcombe Road Market, opposite Bruce Grove station, have already been re-located to temporary premises nearby in High Road, Tottenham.

They will move back when the market's makeover is completed in the autumn.

The revamp will transform the long-established but outdated market, which lacked modern facilities for both stallholders and shoppers.

The aim is to boost trade not only for the market, but also for retailers along High Road.

In addition to modern market kiosks, there will be three new pitches for stalls, improved car parking and signage for shoppers as well as new CCTV to make the area safer.

"It's fantastic to see the improvements we're bringing to Holcombe Road Market gathering pace – meaning better stalls for traders and a better experience for shoppers are a step closer," said Alan Strickland, Haringey Council's cabinet member for housing, regeneration and planning.

"We've worked closely with local residents and businesses to develop these proposals and we're determined to do all we can to show off Tottenham's fantastic range of independent traders."

MP issues stem cell donor appeal

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

TORY MP David Burrowes is urging his constituents to back a campaign to boost the number of stem cell and bone marrow donors.

Mr Burrowes, the MP for Enfield Southgate, made the plea after attending a celebrity-backed event at the Houses of Parliament hosted by the Team Margot charity.

Team Margot was created in memory of Margot Martini, an inspirational toddler with a rare and aggressive form of leukaemia, who sparked a worldwide campaign to find more stem cell donors following her death in 2014, aged two.

Her family is campaigning in her name to encourage more people to sign up to the UK stem cell register.

Mr Burrowes, who is on the bone marrow register, said: "This is a campaign that I feel very strongly about and one that I wholeheartedly support.

"We urgently need to boost the number of donors on the UK stem cell and bone marrow register and I urge as many of my constituents in Enfield Southgate to sign up to the register." The reception, held in parliament on Wednesday last week, attracted more than 150 people, including Olympic decathlon great Daley Thompson and former Crimewatch host Nick Ross. Mr Burrowes, one of the Tory MPs

Mr Burrowes, one of the Tory MPs who called on the government to provide safe and legal routes for refugees, was interviewed on Channel 4 News the following day.

He told presenter Cathy Newman that refugees needed better provision and a "proper package of care" in place when they arrived in the country.

He said: "The government has a moral duty to look after vulnerable people and refugees are some of the most vulnerable people in society.

"We need to make sure they are treated equally and with dignity. There needs to be a care package in place — not just for 28 days, but for 12 months. "It is obvious they can't have their National Insurance number, wages, a job, money for rent, any of that, within

'SATs don't tell us everything', says education chief

TESTING of primary school pupils cannot measure how unique and special each child is, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education said this week.

While acknowledging that the National Curriculum (SATs) tests play a crucial role in improving educational standards, Ayfer Orhan said there were many important things they could measure.

In a special message aimed at hundreds of Year 6 10 and 11-year-olds who sat their Key Stage 2 SATs last week, she praised them for the hard work they had put in.

But Ms Orhan said children often felt under pressure and that while teachers did their utmost to help them deal with it, it was important for young people to remember that they might have other abilities, talents and skills they may possess which cannot be measured.

"They don't tell you if you're good at sport or music, whether you are a nice and kind person, or whether you have good social skills and are a good friend – all things we encourage in our schools and which we feel are at least as important as how well you do in your SATs," she said.

"So remember, the SATs scores will tell you something, but they will not tell you everything as there are no tests that can measure all the great things you can do.

Looking for a little bit of help: Chase Farm Charity is appealing for volunteers

A little spruce-up

VOLUNTEERS will begin clearing the way for new therapy gardens at Chase Farm Hospital next week.

Volunteers will begin the process on Wednesday of transforming the gardens at the hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield, into a haven for stroke and dementia sufferers, who will use the therapeutic practice of tending to plants as a way to treat their illnesses.

Savita Tailor, the community fundraiser for the Chase Farm Charity, told the Advertiser: "The gardens have been designed to support dementia and stroke rehabilitation patients and their families.

"They will provide a much-needed outdoor space to help stimulate the patients, aid recovery and provide a safe outdoor area."

She is calling on green-fingered residents to go along and help transform the gardens into tranquil spaces that will nurture patients' rehabilitation.

She added that when the gardens are officially opened for their new purpose, all plants recovered will be sold off with the proceeds going towards new plants more suited to the therapy gardens.

Anyone interested in volunteering on the day or during the three-month project can get in touch with Savita on 020 8375 2186.

USUALLY it's a big crowd-puller, but one of the world's most famous steam locomotives slipped almost unnoticed through Enfield on Friday night.

The Flying Scotsman - making its first journey on a line through the borough since a £4million restoration - sped through Enfield Chase station on its ways to Kings Cross from York just after 9pm.

Catching a rare glimpse of the special train normally attracts hundreds of enthusiasts and members of the public. But the station platform was deserted - apart from Enfield resident and self-confessed steam train nut Dave Wadley, along with a fellow enthusiast

The 70-year-old, who lives in Graeme Road, Enfield, filmed The Flying Scotsman's brief appearance for the online YouTube channel he runs, which features clips of steam trains.

"The intention had been for her to make the trip on the Thursday, but the journey had to be rescheduled after she developed a mechanical fault," he explained.

"She had to make the run with a diesel engine and not, as was originally planned, pulling coaches on a daytime chartered passenger trip,' he added.

Dave found out about the re-scheduled run from a "secret" train enthusiasts' website.

"It's not really secret, but Network Rail don't want it widely publicised after people trespassed on the track trying to catch sight of her on other outings, so I can't share it with anyone," he added.

The former factory manager has had a passion for steam trains since he was a small boy, describing himself as a "bit of an anorak". Friday's sighting of the Flying Scotsman wasn't his first, having glimpsed it twice near Huntingdon, in Cambridgeshire, and Retford, in Nottinghamshire, since it started running again in February following its decade-long restoration by the National Railway Museum.

"As the first steam train to break the 100mph barrier in 1934 and a marvel of engineering she is an icon of the steam age," added Dave.

Musical duo are in a class of their own

A SONG composed by Enfield teachers encouraging children to clear up the classroom after lessons has become a hit with colleagues and parents.
Chris Michael and George

Papakyriacou wrote the Tidy Up Rhumba together and it has had more than two million hits via their YouTube channel.

The two teachers joined forces as Musical Playground to write songs for children and have just released their second album. Are We There Yet?

If you would like

They met at Barnet College and started composing fun and educational music and songs together before recording them in a studio and releasing the albums to reach a wider audience.

"We felt there were not enough songs out there for children and we have written at least 25 songs with different themes and topics," said Ms Michael. Tidy Up Rhumba has struck a chord with parents and teachers.

Ms Michael, 42, who works at West Grove Primary School in Chase Road, Southgate, where she is the music co-ordinator, said: "We've had comments about the Tidy Up Rhumba from Sweden and America and people tell us it works."

She said that teachers were always trying to encourage children to clear up after a busy lesson. "It's a bugbear for teachers. We wanted to write a silly song, make it fun and have children enjoy tidying up without feeling it's chore. It's about putting chairs on tables, that kind of thing, that as teachers we have to do. We've had a lot of people say it really works with their child at home."

The song is getting 3,000 to 4,000 hits a day and the teachers hope it is helping to get children to tidy up.

The two composers used to work at the same school.

Mr Papakyriacou, 44, now teaches at St Michael's Primary, in Brigadier Hill, Enfield.

In their song they tell children: "I want this classroom to look so fantastic."

Why Desert Rat Stan thinks that 107 is a piece of cake

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

DESERT Rat Stanley Middleton has celebrated his 107th birthday surrounded by family and friends.

Mr Middleton was an engineer and served with the 7th Armoured Division repairing the British Army's lorries and other military vehicles during World War II.

After leaving the Army, Mr Middleton worked for Enfield Council – driving steamrollers on the borough's roads.

Until a year ago he was still making his own bread and a weekly fruit cake, as well as tending to his garden in Conway Gardens, Enfield. His niece, Janet Mills, who helped celebrate his birthday on Friday, attributed his longevity to his healthy eating and active lifestyle.

Ms Mills, of Graeme Road,
Enfield, said: "He's amazing. Until a year ago he would go to Tesco for his shopping and bake all his own bread. He was a really active man."

He was married to his wife, May, for 33 years.

Mr Middleton moved into Woodbury Manor care home, in Clay Hill, North Enfield, two months ago following a fall and a bout of pneumonia.

Joanne Jarvis, the manager of the home, described him as a true a chat. I have never known anyone who has lived to be 107, it's really amazing.

"I'm not sure of the secret of his success, although he loves a bowl of porridge and a cup of tea every morning, so maybe it's that."

Society launches search for the perfect model

THE Enfield Society has put out an appeal for the loan of a miniature scale model of the type architects use.

The society, which works to preserve and protect the borough's historic treasures and cherished heritage, is celebrating its 80th birthday – and to mark the milestone a free exhibition highlighting its achievements, called The Enfield Society – 80 years of Action, opened at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, today (Wednesday) and runs until January.

The exhibition is being staged in conjunction with Enfield Council's museum service.

The Dugdale's museum gallery will exhibit artefacts, photographs and archive material – but what the society is desperately hoping to acquire for its display on architecture and planning is a genuine detailed architect's model.

"We need it to enhance the display," said society spokesman Bob Fowler.

"If there is an architectural practice that can be of assistance, or there is somebody out there who has an unwanted one gathering dust in the loft or a cupboard, we would much appreciate a loan of it."

Man, 27, jailed for 19 years over gun and drug charges

A MAN from Brimsdown who stashed four guns in a house has been jailed for 19 years

Shane Hart, 27, of Glenloch Road, Brimsdown, was found guilty of two counts of possession of a handgun, two counts of possession of an automatic weapon, possession of bullets, three counts of possession of a firearm with intent to endanger life and possession with intent to supply cocaine at Wood Green Crown Court earlier this month.

Officers from the Met Police's gun crime unit found two Walther handguns, a MAC10 machine gun, a sawn-off shotgun, ammunition and a drug-packing machine when they searched a home in Hill Road, Muswell Hill, on September

They also found just over 100 grams of cocaine. Police hunted down Hart, who was known to be associated with the property.

They found him in Enfield and he was arrested. Phones and house keys were taken from the BMW he was travelling in.

The keys were found to fit locks in the Hill Road house

Cyclists welcome Green Lanes plans

CYCLISTS have welcomed the latest Mini Holland plans for Green Lanes which were unveiled last week.

Scores of people turned up to Palmers Green Library to see the designs for the programme, which will see transport links, roads and businesses transformed with £42million of external investment

After seeing the plans, Enfield Cycling Campaign member Andrew Larssen said: "The engineers have done a good job. The Bush Hill junction, in particular, has cycles crossing in a separate phase to cars – a Dutch-style junction and the first of its kind in the UK."

Better Streets for Enfield's Clare Rogers echoed Mr Larssen's sentiments

She said: "I was impressed with the plans. The bike lanes should allow anyone to cycle safely in Green Lanes, including children, unthinkable at present. The lanes are wide enough for cargo bikes or adapted cycles for disabled cyclists.

cause congestion, but traffic modelling has disproved this and the width should both discourage speeding and make crossing the road safer.

"Unfortunately, we were shocked by the attitude of some people at the exhibition. All the research shows cycle lanes either having no effect or benefiting business.

"What a shame to see this fear of change overcoming common sense and the chance of a better environment for our children.'

Daniel Anderson, cabinet member for environment, said that the plans for Palmers Green, which are being delivered through the Mayor of London's Mini Holland fund, would enable Enfield Council to transform high streets and town centres and promote healthier, more active travel".

■HE London borough of Enfield will become a vibrant hub of arts and culture again this summer as the Summer In Enfield programme of festivals and events gets under way on Saturday.

This year's festival begins with a new initiative by Enfield's new mayor, Bernadette Lappage.

Called Enfield Sounds Great, the year-long festival of music will focus on the huge benefits that music making brings to the community and brings together partners right across Enfield.

Events include an Instrument Amnesty hosted by the Palace Exchange Shopping Centre, in Enfield Town, where people can drop off no longer used musical instruments that will be distributed among young people who can't afford to buy them.

Also, we are celebrating the fourth anniversary of our very own jazz club, Ziggys, at the Dugdale Centre.

But there's not just music in this exciting summer programme.

Edmonton Green Shopping Centre will play host to a festival of outdoor theatre in August in partnership with Enfield Council's Millfield Theatre. Called Circulate, this free festival brings international dance, circus and visual arts right to the centre of the community.

There will be circus in Palmers Green, outdoor film in Enfield Town Park, poetry and literature at the Lamb Festival in Edmonton and house music in Trent Park among the more than 350 events taking place over the summer.

Pick up a copy of the Summer In Enfield magazine to see full details of what's on.

A huge thank you for these fundraising efforts

WOULD like to extend a warm thank you to Tesco customers and colleagues from London for their dedicated efforts to raise funds for Diabetes UK and the British Heart Foundation to date.

Since the three-year National Charity Partnership between the two charities and Tesco launched in January 2015, customer donations, along with store colleagues' fundraising, have contributed £7.14million to the £10m raised for the partnership to date.

This includes £336,000 raised by customers and colleagues at Tesco stores in London.

Thanks to the tireless fundraising tomers, the partnership will bring free healthy food and physical activity projects to east London throughout 2016 and 2017.

Already the partnership has launched its Let's Do This campaign, which will include projects that aim to encourage people to get active and eat well to help to reduce the risk of developing both heart and circulatory disease and type 2 diabetes.

People living with type 2 diabetes are at a higher risk of developing heart and circulatory disease.

With millions of people in England currently at increased risk of developprojects like Let's Do This will help reduce this number.

The ongoing commitment shown by Tesco colleagues in London to fundraise for this cause is truly inspiring. I am also hugely grateful to Tesco customers who have shown their support at in-store events and would encourage them to continue to do so.

The next major fundraiser for the partnership, Tesco2016, a footballinspired event, will take place in stores nationwide from June 3-5.

Young refugees need our help

I HAVE just returned to the UK after a short trip to Calais, France – a journey thousands of British families will make this summer as they go on holiday. Yet went to visit the children living all alone in the refugee camp that has become known as "the jungle".

The young boys I met had all made dangerous journeys to escape war and many are trying to reach family members who are waiting for them right here in the UK. The children I spoke to had suffered so much and being reunited with aunts and uncles, brothers and sisters would be a life-changing opportunity to escape the dangers of trafficking, abuse and exploitation which they risk while stuck in Calais.

The government has promised to help these children be reunited with their families, but many have already waited months and are so desperate they are willing to risk their lives by attempting to stow away in trucks or trains to get to the UK. I'd urge your readers to join Unicef UK in calling on the government to reunite refugee children in Europe with their families in the UK at unicef.uk/familyreunion Lily Caprani

Why we should stay in the EU

LONDON is home to the most diverse communities in the UK and is rightly seen as a welcoming city.

The free movement we enjoy as part of the EU is overwhelmingly positive for our city and an important reason to vote to Remain on June 23.

EU membership enables students to study in Europe, Brits to seek employment in 27 other EU countries, mixed nationality couples to share their lives and Brits to retire abroad. More than one million ex-pat Brits are currently enjoying these rights. Every year more than 10,000 UK students attend European universities and this is shown to improve their long-term job prospects.

EU citizens in London enrich our lives. Figures show that workers from the EU make an important net contribution to the economy, more than covering additional education costs, for example.

We are economically and culturally richer in the EU and it is vital we Remain on June 23.

Time to take matters into your own hands

THE housing shortage, rocketing rents and sky-high house prices mean that quality, affordable homes are out of reach for many people. But all over the country communities are refusing to be beaten by the housing crisis by building their own.

That's why at Locality we are encouraging people to tackle the housing crisis head-on by building their own.

Our new programme will help people start up their own projects to provide affordable, decent homes for themselves, their families and their communities.

Our scheme will help groups start up their own community-led housing projects - where communities build or manage their own housing developments – and is being funded with a grant of £160,000 from the Nationwide Foundation. It will support 22 groups across England to get started in building homes for their communities.

Community-led housing can help tackle the following problems facing neighbourhoods:

Young people struggling to get on the housing ladder because of high house prices.

- Older residents who want to downsize, but can't find the right properties without moving out of the area.
- Those in need, such as unemployed people or single parents, who have little chance of finding decent local houses.
- Limited supply of reasonably priced family homes.
- the kind of homes people want or need.
- Long waiting lists for social housing.

 Support Programme, visit http://

The decision to install a camera here leaves me baffled as well

AS a resident who uses the slip road which exits at Carterhatch Lane, I must agree with Elaine Perkins ("Money Box", Advertiser, May 18) in that if you do not enter the hatched box you are unable to exit the slip road.

Many people have started pulling into the second lane to exit and then cut across the traffic at the lights, which is becoming a danger.

The only other option is to double round and exit by a road further up primary school (Worcesters), which has expanded and already has problems with excess traffic at certain times of the day.

Carterhatch, but this means passing a

If we all have to start using this way, how long will it be before a child is hurt by a vehicle?

I have lived in this area for 20 years and the hatched box has always been there. Why now put a camera on this junction?

Does the council feel there is an issue at this junction. If so wouldn't contacting and discussing the issues with the residents be a better option than putting up a option that seems to be only to make money.

the new mayor

By Clare Casey

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

FLAMBOYANT and friendly with lipstick that co-ordinates with her heels, Bernadette Lappage is the new mayor of Enfield.

She's the face of the borough and the ambassador for this patch of north London that she calls "her true home" after her Irish parents emigrated to Enfield in the 1940s.

Taking tea in the mayor's parlour, she points out the few tweaks she's made to make it more "her".

"I've moved things around a bit and am going to put up some Monet pictures — at my own expense, of course, not out of the taxpayers' pocket," she jokes,

"I like bright, happy things that make people

"I like bright, happy things that make people feel good about themselves. Positivity, that's what I'm all about."

Mrs Lappage tells the Advertiser her big ambitions as mayor are to promote the borough and bring music to people.

She says: "I love Enfield, but I sometimes feel we don't shout about it enough. There's so much talent here and so many good things going on, so much diversity, so one of my aims is to bring all that together.

"My charity has two elements to it and it's all about music. I am calling it Enfield Sounds Great and I'll be raising money for lots of music-based projects from school choirs to orchestras, adult choirs, the Glee Project, where 18 Edmonton schools go to perform on a London stage. Then the other part is taking music to older people and people with dementia, where it has been proved that music can really help.

"Being Irish, music is in my DNA. There was "Being Irish, music is in my DNA. There was always music growing up, Irish dancing, singing, so it's part of my heritage. Music crosses all boundaries and is a common language."

Before becoming a councillor in 1998, Mrs Lappage did a French degree, met her husband Andrew – they have been married for 32 years – lived in Paris and ran her own French school, Joie de Vive, in Enfield. She also worked for the council as a benefits officer and had her son, Edward, 20, who goes to the Guildford School of Acting, part of the University of Surrey.

Although she's a Labour councillor in Music is my first love, says

Although she's a Labour councillor in Edmonton (for Jubilee ward) as mayor she promises to be "apolitical" and run council meetings professionally and fairly.

She adds: "I want to be very approachable, I like people, I am a very huggy person and I really enjoy meeting people and socialising. When I was made mayor, the choir sang One Call Away by Charlie Puth and the lyrics go: 'I'm only one call away, I'll be there to save the day, Superman got nothing on me, I'm only one call away' – and that's me, one of the people."

In the midst of a furore over all but four establishments being turned over to volunteers and community groups, the council is preparing a £4.2m cash injection to transform Edmonton Green library.

The library will be closed from September this year until next summer and the work will see a new two-storey building with an IT centre and increased study spaces as well as a dedicated local history and museum space.

While libraries funding has been scaled back and the majority of smaller libraries have been passed into the hands of community groups, an Enfield Council spokesman explained that the money for the improvements was coming from a part of the budget that has not been hit as hard by funding cuts.

The spokesman said: "This money comes out of our capital budget. It is not the same budget as the revenue one, which is currently subject to extensive government spending cuts

He added that the council was determined to prove how much they value libraries

"The refurbishment is part of the council's library development strategy agreed in 2015 to create a sustainable future for the borough's libraries," he said. He also said that the council expected that by working with commercial partners such as the café, in Enfield Town library, they would raise more than £100,000 over the space of a year.

"This is money that council tax payers will not have to contribute towards the library service and which can be ploughed into services elsewhere," he said.

Shutting for refurbishment: Edmonton Green Library will be closed in September

Library booked for £4.2million revamp

Ayfer Orhan, said: "I am incredibly proud that, despite significant budget reductions from central government, the council been able to protect our library service, upgrade our facilities and keep all 17 libraries in our borough open something that many London councils have been unable to do.

"Over the coming weeks we will be consulting local people on what they would like to see in the new Edmonton Green Library, so I would urge people to participate.

"We will also be setting up alternative arrangements to ensure people who use the library can continue to access the services they rely on while the refurbishment takes place.'

Poorest warning over plans to cut free prescriptions

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

Twitter @NrthLondonNews

THE poorest and most vulnerable people will be hit hard by plans to slash free prescriptions for over-the-counter medicines, says the head of the Enfield Over 50s Forum.

Enfield health bosses have written to GPs urging them to stop issuing free prescriptions for "easily bought medicines" including paracetemol, hay fever tablets, eye drops and Gaviscon. The controversial letter from the Enfield NHS

Clinical Commissioning Group has sparked anger among members of the Over 50s Forum.

Forum president Monty Meth, 90, said: "I am very worried about this, not for myself, but for the poorest and most vulnerable people who will be hit by this

"Enfield residents are now rated as living in the 12th most deprived of London's boroughs and this attempt by the CCG to reduce its medicines bill will mainly hurt people on income support, the unemployed on job seeker's allowance, the hundreds if not thousands of elderly local people receiving pension credit and families with children under 16."

The letter, seen by the forum, has been sent to GPs at all 49 surgeries in the borough.

Mr Meth added: "Enfield CCG constantly says it wants to involve patients and the public at all levels, but this key policy change has been introduced without any consultation with the patient participation groups attached to many surgeries.'

NEWS

The long list of medicines which the CCG says should now be bought by patients include Parac-etamol, which they say is about four times more expensive on prescription, hay fever remedies costing between £6 and £10; eye drops and ointments costing £2 to £8; cough and cold remedies; and the indigestion remedy Gaviscon priced according to size between £4 and £10.

A spokesman for the CCG said the move was to cut costs.

He said: "The CCG currently spends more than £1 million a year on medicines that are readily available to buy from local pharmacies, shops or supermarkets and which are often only required short term for minor ailments.

"We have reviewed prescribing in Enfield and have agreed a list of medicines which can easily be purchased cheaply over the counter. These medicines are usually prescribed for minor or short-term health problems. Only and where this is not the case, they may continue to be prescribed.

"Faced with ever increasing levels of demand and rapidly rising medicines costs, it is vital that we use the NHS resources as effectively as possible in order to provide the best quality of care for all Enfield patients."

Second High Court challenge possible

Residents ponder next move in planning wrangle

By Clare Casey

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

THOUSANDS of pounds of public money which the council has spent on a planning wrangle could exceed the £45,000 it has forked out in legal costs so far, if residents mount a second High Court challenge.

The residents are considering their next move in a long-standing battle with developers who want to build a four-bedroomed house on a small patch of a garden in Walsingham Road.

The site backs on to Essex Road and falls within the Enfield Town Conservation Area.

Enfield Council has already had to meet a significant bill for legal costs following a judicial review of the planning application.

And it could be shelling out even more if the protesters appeal against the council's latest decision – taken at a planning committee meeting last month – to give the building the green light.

Richard Berndes, 47, who lives in Essex Road, said that he and others were considering taking the council to the High Court.

Mr Berndes said: "We are bitterly disappointed that the plan has been given the go-ahead been given the go-ahead.

"We have been here before and if necessary will take this to the courts. It's astounding that they are so short of money they are laying off a third of their staff, but are spending all this money on one planning application."

The saga of the development has been dragging on since 2010 when the developers first submitted a planning application. The initial application was rejected by the council.

However, in 2014, the developers submitted a second application and were successful.

Essex Road residents were so incensed by that decision they launched a successful bid for a judicial review.

And in February last year a High Court judge upheld every aspect of the residents' grievance, ordered the council to pay all the costs of the claimants' case and quashed the 2014 decision to grant planning permission for the development.

Since then the developers have submitted a revised proposal, which has now been approved, despite more than 70 letters of objection.

An Enfield Council spokesman said: "The development involves a single house on garden land to the side of 36 Walsingham Road part of which lies in the Enfield Town Conservation Area.

"Following a previous decision to grant planning permission residents lodged a successful judicial review.

"A very careful analysis by officers of the application plus robust external advice, led to a new recommendation of approval for the development.

"After hearing the comments of residents and considering the merits of the case, the Planning Committee agreed with officers' recommendation.

"The concerns of residents around the process are acknowledged by the council but the process has been carefully reviewed and this should not prevent the applicant having a decision on his application."

Projects set for a boost – thanks to marathon charity

A PLAYGROUND equipped for children with disabilities has been given a £150,000 boost and a cricket club's changing rooms will get a makeover thanks to a £50,000 grant from the London Marathon.

The marathon's charitable trust has awarded Enfield Council £150,000 to develop London's first Plan Inclusive Play Area accredited playground in Albany Park, Enfield Wash.

The money will be used to kit out the park, in Bell Lane, to provide children with disabilities and long-term health problems the same opportunities for movement, physical activity and play as able bodied children.

The London Marathon Charitable Trust was set up in 1981 and gives money to areas where its mass participation events, including the marathon itself, take place. This year it has also given £50,000 to Botany Bay Cricket Club.

The cash will go towards enlarging and refurbishing changing rooms at the club, in East Lodge Lane, Enfield.

Running clubs in Enfield, including Trent Park, help out during the annual 26.2 -mile event, which attracts about 327,000 participants each year.

Enfield runners are also keen to take part in the marathon. Sir Rodney Walker, the chairman of the London Marathon Charitable Trust, said it had a record £7.5million. "We are actively seeking high-quality applications from organisations that will get more people physically active."

Since 1981, the trust has handed out £62m to more than 1,130 projects.

Vicki gets back on her bike for charity

Night ride will raise funds to fight cancer

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCILLOR is gearing up for a ride through the night to help the fight against cancer. Vicki Pite, of Weardale Gardens, Enfield, has been a Labour councillor for Chase ward

Not content with the challenge of working as a councillor, Mrs Pite, 66, is now embarking on a 104-kilometre ride from Windsor to Westminster along the River Thames at night.

She and fellow councillor Claire Stewart, who represents Southgate Green, will be pedalling through the night on Saturday in a bid to raise money to combat women's cancers.

She told the Advertiser. "I wanted to raise money for cancer charities and because I am a woman of a certain age these things really res-

"Also, it has been a long time since I did a challenge like this. I used to ride all the time – I rode to work when I worked in Barnet - but now the roads are so busy and it can be quite scary for a cyclist going out on the roads, so I train in a gym."

Mrs Pite said that realising how intimidating it can be as a cyclist to share a road with heavy goods vehicles, cars and buses has made her determined to support the Cycle Enfield scheme. "It is something I feel really strongly about," she added. "There are a raft of residents like me. In a sense I am a test for the plans. If the cycle lanes can get somebody like me cycling, they will have been a success.

What's on and what's coming

When it comes to Collins, Chris has got it covered

Groovy: Chris Hayward, above and below left, is bringing his Take A Look At Me Now tribute show to Millfield Theatre, in Edmonton, and Wyllyotts Theatre, in Potters Bar, next week

Bv Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

SHORT dumpy and bald, Phil Collins was never your conventional rock star.

But with a string of chart-busting hits in the 1980s he was one of the biggest-selling artists on the planet.

Fast forward 20-odd years and listening to his music has become something of a guilty pleasure with many people ashamed to admit liking his sentimental soul-baring ballads and toe-tapping pop covers for fear of being labelled a bit naff.

"Middle of the road music for yuppies," it's been dubbed.

But nowadays the man who sold 100 million albums as a solo artist and a similar number as the drummer and vocalist with Genesis is finally receiving the critical acclaim that had eluded him.

And on Thursday and Friday of next week, Phil Collins fans can proudly come out of the closet when the Take A Look At Me Now Phil Collins tribute show is staged on consecutive nights at Wyllyotts Theatre, in Darkes Lane, Potters Bar, and at Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton.

An 11-piece line-up of musicians including two drummers, a horn section, a percussionist and backing singers faithfully recreate all the classic hits covering his solo career and his time with Genesis.

Emulating Phil Collins is Chris Hayward, who, despite having more hair, first learnt he looked and sounded uncannily like the multi-platinum-selling legend at a karaoke bar.

"It was back when I was about 22 and was singing I Wish It Would Rain Down on karaoke and people told me how much I sounded like him," he said.

Those unfamiliar with Phil Collins' back catalogue will be surprised at just how many chart-busting hits he had and most are covered, including Another Day in Paradise, I Wish It Would Rain Down, Sussudio, Can't Hurry Love, Easy Lover, Jesus He Knows Me, In The Air Tonight, A Groovy Kind of Love, Something Happened On The Way To Heaven, Invisible Touch, Can't Dance and many more.

film review

hose head deserves to roll?

(PG, 113 mins)

ELEASED in 2010, Tim Burton's descent down the rabbit hole of Alice In Wonderland was a triumph of eye-popping style and weirdness over substance.

Audiences didn't care about flimsv narrative and his quixotic journey of self-discovery became the second highest grossing film that year behind Toy Story 3, with box office takings of more than $1billion.

Curiouser and curiouser.

That's more than one billion compelling reasons for a sequel and, lo and behold, James Bobin replaces Burton at the helm for the madcap time-travelling adventure, Alice Through The Looking Glass.

Screenwriter Linda Woolverton, who adapted the first film, largely abandons Lewis Carroll's 1871 novel, introducing an eccentric new character - Time - in order to facilitate some trippy excursions through the past and present and reveal how the decapitation-happy Red Queen (Helena Bonham Carter) came to be cursed with an oversized noggin.

Like its predecessor, the sequel spares no expense with the visuals, inducing eye strain, motion sickness and perhaps even the odd headache in 3D and Imax.

The paucity of characterisation is even more pronounced in this second helping, tethering much of the nonsense to Johnny Depp's wide-eyed theatrics as the Mad Hatter

Alice (Mia Wasikowska) has successfully buckled her swash as captain of her father's ship, The Wonder, but when she returns to dry land, the plucky heroine learns that her mother (Lindsay Duncan) has sold the deed to her embittered former suitor, Hamish Ascot (Leo Bill).

Defiant in the face of adversity, Alice takes a tumble through a mirror and plummets into Wonderland where she is reunited with the White Queen (Anne Hathaway), Tweedledee and Tweedledum (Matt Lucas), Absolem the Caterpillar (voiced by Alan Rickman), The Dormouse (Barbara Windsor) and the White Rabbit (Michael Sheen).

They reveal that the Mad Hatter is in an emotional funk because he's convinced that his family, including his milliner father Zanik (Rhys Ifans), did not perish in the Jabberwocky's inferno. To set the Hatter's mind at rest, Alice agrees to steal a device called the Chronosphere from its guardian, Time (Sacha Baron Cohen). "Do try not to break the past, present or future," advises The Cheshire Cat (Stephen Fry) as Alice slides back and forth through time to learn the startling truth.

Alice Through The Looking Glass is a topsy-turvy jaunt too far for Lewis Carroll's iconic characters.

Wasikowska reprises her role as the spirited adventurer who believes that "the only way to achieve the impossible is to believe it is possible" Depp, Cohen and Bonham Carter compete to see who can scene-steal with the areatest abandon. Bobin's film feels considerably longer than 113 minutes.

If only the Chronosphere was real and we could fast forward through the sentimental goo of the final section.

PLANS SUBMITTED FOR NEW AVENUE REGENERATION

A planning application for over 400 new homes, to be built on Avenue Road in Southgate, N14, has been submitted to Enfield Council by Countryside. The proposals will replace the out-dated homes on the New Avenue Estate. As a flagship project within Enfield's estates renewal programme, the redevelopment will increase the number of homes from 171 to 412. Plans include a mix of apartments, maisonettes and houses that will be made available for social rent and private sale. The £140m regeneration project, designed by architects HTA, also includes a multi-purpose community centre and a pre-school nursery.

Working in partnership with Enfield Council, Countryside will deliver the development in four phases, with existing blocks on Coverack Close, Beardow Grove, Oakwood Lodge and Shepcot House to be demolished to make way. All existing council tenants will be given the option where possible of being rehoused within the scheme if they choose.

Richard Cherry, Chief Executive (Partnerships) at Countryside, said: "We have worked closely with the council and local community to design a scheme that not only significantly increases the number of homes, but also creates a much improved environment for residents and the wider community and we look forward to moving ahead with the delivery of new housing for the borough." Cllr Ahmet Oykener, Enfield Council's Cabinet Member for Housing & Estate Regeneration said: "This development not only replaces old housing and introduces many additional homes that will benefit the people of Enfield, but it also includes features that will make it a more enjoyable place to live in. I hope the planning committee receives the plans favourably.'

Motors

Quality - but at a premium

UDI has stuck to its winning formula: take a smart premium estate, add its class-leading four-wheel-drive system and then sell it to people who want a normal-shaped car that won't get stuck in wet grass. To date, the result has always been superb.

This time, the four-wheel-drive transmission has been radically altered to make the car lighter, more fuel efficient and friendlier to the environment. Using what Audi calls "Ultra" technology (its badge for anything vaguely "green"), the rallyborn Quattro system has been brought into the 21st century.

The differences between the vanilla A4 and the A4 Allroad are more subtle than they ever have been. That's partly because the A4 is, overall, a more aggressive-looking car than it once was, with that distinctive gaping front grille full of angry vertical bars. The flared wheel arches have grown into themselves and look far more upmarket when colour-matched than as matte plastic panels. The inside remains the same as the standard car – comfortable, well-constructed and generally pleasing.

Audi is the most upmarket mainstream Volkswagen Group brand and has always produced very desirable cars. While the other VW brands produce similar soft-roader estates – the Seat Leon XPerience, the VW Passat Alltrack and the Skoda Octavia $Scout-the\ A4\ Allroad\ is\ the\ top\ of$ the pile. It's also the most technologically accomplished, thanks to its clever Quattro transmission.

Estate cars are functional vehicles, designed to carry more passengers and luggage than hatchbacks and saloons. The A4 Allroad has a 505litre boot, enough to carry dogs or large suitcases, expanding to 1,510 seats can feel cramped for taller adults as the chunky back supports of the front seats encroach on rear legroom. Buyers looking to regularly carry four blokes in comfort could look elsewhere in Audi's range.

An optional load securing kit, electric boot lid with foot-gesture opening and an innovative trailer reversing system - allowing easier control of the pivot between you and your horsebox – are all practical additions, but will come at a price. Audi's options list is never cheap.

Interestingly, Audi has been keen to downplay the off-road capabilities of the new A4 Allroad. It's true that the extra 34mm of ground clearance you get is unlikely to be enough for any serious mud-plugging and this model's affluent customers can afford to buy a Range Rover or more serious Audi off-roader if they wanted to. But most of them know that a sophisticated four-wheel-drive estate is enough to get them through a British winter, without the need for something as gauche as an SUV.

And this four-wheel-drive system is sophisticated. Unlike the primitive, permanent all-wheel-drive systems that made the Quattro name in the 1980s, and distinct from the systems found in other jacked-up estates, the Ultra system uses a powerful computer to evaluate road conditions and engage the rear axle at least half a second before it's needed. What's more, a special system will disconnect any unused components of the drivetrain when they're not in use, saving fuel. The A4 Allroad feels as at home on a German autobahn as it does around town. Only occasionally will the automatic gearbox feel sluggish or needlessly fidgety and the drive modes – ranging from "comfort" to "dynamic" – help you configure the car to your whims.

In print...or ONLI

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

- I. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
- 2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
- 3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
- 4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

- 1. The advert content can be easily updated.
- 2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
- 3.A massive audience, with all ages now online.
- 4. Very quick response you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

We'll give you the best of both worlds - every week, all week!

STAYING POSITIVE

Making progress: Toby Alderweireld believes that Tottenham will come back stronger

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

TOBY ALDERWEIRELD insists that Tottenham Hotspur will come back stronger next season following their desperately disappointing climax to the Premier League campaign.

Spurs exceeded all expectations for the vast majority of the season as they mounted a genuine title challenge for the first time in the Premier League era.

However, they suffered a dramatic loss of form in the closing weeks as they picked up just two points from their last four games to not only end up 11 points adrift of shock champions Leicester but also slip behind bitter rivals Arsenal on the last day to miss out on runners-up spot.

But Belgian international Alderweireld, who was a revelation at the heart of their defence after joining Tottenham from Atletico Madrid last summer, believes that the experience they gained during the recently finished campaign will stand them in good stead next time around.

He said: "Of course we were very disappointed because we wanted to get second, but overall at the end we have to think we had a good season.

"I think the least match at Newcastle [when Spurs lost 5-1] was our worst game of the season and we didn't want that to happen, so like I said next season is a new season.

"We have got guaranteed Champions League football, which we have not had for a few years, so it's the next step for the club. That's important and next season we can come back stronger.

"We want to win the league and we will go for it. I think we now have a different mindset from the one we had at the beginning of this season. Then we were thinking the top four would be brilliant, but now we are thinking more than that - we want to do better."

Meanwhile, fellow central defender Kevin Wimmer – who made 21 appearances for Spurs in all competitions after joining the club from FC Koln last summer – revealed his delight at how his first season at Tottenham had gone.

"When you think that we nearly won the title, for me personally in my first year in England it's unbelievable," he said. "I knew Tottenham Hotspur as a club that fights for the top four – this was also our target this season and we did well.

"Then we also had the chance to win the title, in the end we were very close but I think we'll just get stronger out of this and hopefully next season we can do a little better.

When I arrived here last summer I felt very good and very comfortable. I was welcomed by everybody, by the players and the staff as well. I felt very good from the beginning and I think we have done very well this season. I've enjoyed it a lot here and I'm already looking forward to next year.'

Skolars survive fightback to seal win

Hornsey open up an eight-point lead

THE London Skolars returned to form in fine style by recording a 30-20 victory at home to Keighley Cougars in rugby league's Kingstone Press Championship One on Saturday.

Having enjoyed an excellent run of results earlier in the campaign, the Skolars went into this match on the back of three successive defeats in all competitions - including a loss at the hands of Keighley in the semi-finals of the iPro Cup.

However, the hosts put that behind them with an accomplished display which saw them take complete control of the contest by opening up an 18-0 lead in the first half and they then overcame a strong fightback from Keighley to hold on for the win.

It took the Skolars just four minutes to break the deadlock when prop Erjon Dollapi powered his way over the line from close range and Aaron Small extended their advantage by bursting through a gap in the defence to touch down.
